Market Overview

International markets continued their strong momentum into May as positive economic data releases in key economies around the world adds fundamental support to rising markets.

The MSCI Emerging Market index rose 2.8%, while the MSCI World index rose 1.8%. Emerging markets have managed to outperform developed markets each month this year. The Greek equity market rose 8.9% and Turkey 3.1%, despite all that is taking place in those economies. The Indian equity market rose 4.1% but the Chinese market fell 1.2%. Within the developed market space, the Hong Kong market surged 4.3%, while the German and the US market each gained 1.3%. Tech shares drove much of the gains once again: the NASDAQ ended the month at an all-time high, having gained 2.5% on the month and 15.2% so far this year.

Global bond markets enjoyed a profitable month. The Bloomberg Barclays Global Bond index rose 1.6% and the equivalent US index rose 0.8%.

The US dollar was again weak in May as it declined 2.1% against a basket of currencies. The euro gained 3.3% against the greenback, while sterling declined 0.2%. Despite the weaker dollar, commodity markets were on the back foot too: oil continued its slippery slide downhill, ending the month 1.8% lower. Oil has managed to decline each month this year, bringing the year-to-date loss to 10.1%. Copper declined 0.8% and nickel 5.3%, but it was iron ore which again grabbed the most attention, ending the month down 14.7%.

Units in linked insurance policies should be considered as medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go up as well as down and past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Unit prices are calculated on a net asset basis, which is the total value of all the assets in the portfolio including any income accruals and less any permissible deductions (Brokerage, Securities Transfer Tax, VAT, Auditor's fees, Bank Charges, Custodian fees and the annual Management fee) from the portfolio divided by the number of units in issue. Fluctuations or movements in exchange rates may cause the value of any underlying international investments to go up and down. Forward pricing is used.
