Market Overview

May provided all sorts of reasons for equity markets to decline. We had, and still have in some cases, political crises in Italy and Spain, economic crises in Turkey and Brazil, the initiation of trade wars by the US, and a surprising movement towards peace on the Korean peninsula. Emerging currencies were weak, as was the euro, the dollar was strong, and so too was the oil price, but gold disappointed yet again as a so-called "store of value". As it happens, global bond markets took the most strain and equity markets experienced a great deal of volatility.

The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond index declined 0.8% while the US Bond index rose 0.8%. Evidence of the pain in emerging equity markets can be seen in the 3.8% decline in the MSCI Emerging Markets index. In contrast, the MSCI World index rose 0.3%. The Brazilian equity market fell 10.9% on the back of the economic chaos there. The Greek market declined 11.9% as investors reflected on the events in Italy and the Turkish equity market fell 3.5% ahead of the upcoming election and amidst massive government interference in economic policy.

The Indian and Chinese equity markets rose 0.5% and 0.4% respectively. Developed equity markets registered mixed fortunes; the Swiss market declined 4.8%, the Hang Seng fell 1.1%, and the German market 0.1%, but the US equity market rose 2.3%. The NASDAQ index rose 5.3% as tech companies powered ahead, and the S&P Mid and Small cap indices ended up 4.0% and 6.3% respectively.

Local market returns

Turning to the local markets, the All Share index fell 3.5%, bringing its year-to-date decline to 4.4%. The Financial index ended 6.3% lower and the Industrial index lost 5.1%. The Basic Materials index ended the month 3.8% higher. Retail shares in particular were weak as concerns grew about the state of the economy in general and the SA consumer in particular. The Small cap index fell 2.4% while the Mid cap index ending the month down 8.4%. The All Bond index fell 2.0%.

Units in linked insurance policies should be considered as medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go up as well as down and past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Unit prices are calculated on a net asset basis, which is the total value of all the assets in the portfolio including any income accruals and less any permissible deductions (Brokerage, Securities Transfer Tax, VAT, Auditor's fees, Bank Charges, Custodian fees and the annual Management fee) from the portfolio divided by the number of units in issue. Fluctuations or movements in exchange rates may cause the value of any underlying international investments to go up and down. Forward pricing is used. Maestro Investment Management (Pty) Limited and Prescient Life Limited are members of the Association for Savings and Investments of South Africa (ASISA).
