Orchestrating Your Wealth

Market Overview

The year is rushing to an end, although from an investment point of view September proved to be another fascinating month. This year is proving to be a most interesting mosaic, with all sorts of factors influencing market returns in the midst of an inordinate amount of debate regarding not only the future, but also the present.

The MSCI World index rose 2.1%, while the MSCI Emerging market index lost 0.6%. Their year-to-date returns are 14.2% and 25.5% respectively, showing what a profitable year 2017 is proving to be. Notable features on the equity market front were the 3.6% rise in the Japanese market, thanks in part to a weaker yen, and the German market (the Dax), which surged 6.4%, assisted by the 0.6% decline in the euro relative to the dollar. It is worth highlighting the performance of the US (S&P) Mid and Small cap indices, which rose 3.8% and 7.6% respectively. Their gains were fuelled by the proposed tax changes in the US - mid and smallsized companies are likely to be major beneficiaries if the proposals come into being, although of course that is a very big "if".

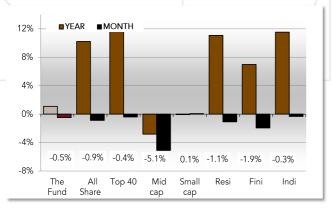

With the US Federal Reserve (the Fed) signaling their intention to start scaling back the vast quantity of money with which they supported global financial markets since the 2007/9 great financial crisis, together with the expectation of another interest rate increase in December, the dollar firmed against most global currencies and emerging market currencies in particular.

Local market returns

Turning to the local investment environment, we are seeing some evidence of weakness creeping into the market. The Mid cap index declined by 5.1%. The Large cap (Top40) index declined 0.4% but a lot of the weakness emanated from Basic Material shares, which ended the month 1.1% lower (the Gold index lost 7.5%), and Financials, which ended 1.9% lower. The Industrial index lost 0.3%. Surprisingly, particularly in the light of weak global bond markets and the weak rand, the All Bond index rose 1.1%, bringing its year-to-date return to 7.9% versus the 12.6% of the All Share index.

Investment manager comment

The return on the Fund was -0.5% versus the -0.9% return of the All Share index. The outperformance was primarily due to stock-specific movements. As always, we experienced a mixed basket of returns within the Fund. The "losers" included EOH, which declined 14.2% despite reporting respectable results during the month; Mediclinic, which declined 8.0% despite the weak rand; Discovery Holdings, which declined 6.6% despite also posting encouraging results (it has risen 22.8% so far this year); Firstrand, which lost 6.3%; and Ascendis Health, which lost 6.0% despite producing what we believe to be good results. The "winners" during the month included Afrimat, which rose 1.4%, AdaptIT rose 2.1%, Echo Polska 4.1%, Aspen 4.7%, and Richemont 6.2%.
