Market Overview

After the shock and reverberations of the draconian regulation which was widely dished out by the Chinese authorities in July, market activity during August seemed positively pedestrian. Of course it was not, but it did seem like that to some extent. However, monitoring the dynamic Chinese situation, and assimilating and "getting behind the numbers" of one of the greatest reporting periods in history, kept us on our toes and demanded all our attention.

The MSCI World index rose 2.4% in August, led by the US equity market, which rose 3.0% - its 7th consecutive monthly increase - and Japan's market, which also rose 3.0%. The German market rose 1.9%, and the Swiss market 2.4%, while the US tech-heavy NASDAQ index rose 4.0%. The Hong Kong market declined 0.3%. The Shanghai Composite index rose 4.3%, and the Indian market rose 9.4%, helping the MSCI Emerging Market index to a 2.4% gain. The latter index's year-to-date gain of only 1.4%, is in stark contrast to the MSCI World index gain of 16.8%. Developed markets have comprehensively outperformed emerging markets so far this year.

Global bond markets were under a bit of pressure in August; the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond index declined 0.4%. The cash return was simply non-existent. The dollar rose 0.5%, which placed most other currencies under a bit of pressure. Commodity prices ended the month mixed, with many hard commodity prices falling due to signs of an economic slowdown. The price of copper fell 2.1%, and iron ore, which has been in a freefall since rising to extraordinary levels during the second quarter, declined 15.5%.

Units in linked insurance policies should be considered as medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go up as well as down and past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Unit prices are calculated on a net asset basis, which is the total value of all the assets in the portfolio including any income accruals and less any permissible deductions (Brokerage, Securities Transfer Tax, VAT, Auditor's fees, Bank Charges, Custodian fees and the annual Management fee) from the portfolio divided by the number of units in issue. Fluctuations or movements in exchange rates may cause the value of any underlying international investments to go up and down. Forward pricing is used.
