Market Overview

The behaviour of global equity markets during May is easy to brush aside on the basis that it was "just another strong month". Yet consider the following: the world remains in the throes of a global health pandemic that is far from over; a pandemic which has wrought economic destruction and devastation on an unimaginable scale – most of which is yet to be seen. In addition, the economic catastrophe has obliterated earnings, the ultimate driver of share prices, for at least half of the market, and has completely destroyed a number of industries in its wake. There is no visibility at all as to when economies will return to some form of "normality", and exactly what that means is anyone's guess.

The Hang Seng index declined 6.8%, India 3.8% and China 0.3% in May, bringing to only three the number of major equity markets to register declines during the past month. The MSCI World index rose 4.6% and the Emerging Market index 0.6%. The US rose 4.7%, Germany's Dax index rose 6.7%, and Japan's Nikkei rose 8.3%. The Brazilian and Russian markets rose 8.5% and 8.4% respectively. The S&P Mid and Small cap indices rose 7.1% and 4.2% respectively, indicative of the increasing appetite for risk that characterized market behaviour during the month.

The dollar declined slightly during May, which supported commodity prices. The oil price rose 38.4% but is still down 43.7% during the past year. The price of copper rose 3.5%, iron ore rose 20.2%, the coal price rose 22.8% and soft (food-related) commodities were generally firmer. On the currency front, most emerging market currencies were firmer. The Bloomberg Aggregate Global Bond index rose 0.4%, bringing its annual gain for the year to 2.1%.

Local market returns

The All Share index rose only 0.3%, but was dragged down by the Financial index (-3.2%) and the Industrial index (-1.8%). The Basic Materials index rose 5.5% and the Mid and Small cap indices ended the month up 0.2% and down 3.2% respectively. The rand firmed 4.2% against the dollar while the All Bond index rose 7.1% although its annual return to end-May is only 1.6%. Companies which we do have exposure to, and which disappointed on the month, included Cashbuild, which declined 20.9%, Capitec, which ended the month down 6.2%, Naspers 3.8% and Shoprite 3.4%. On the other hand, companies that assisted us in outperforming the market included Billiton, which rose 10.8%, MTN rose 10.9%, Ninety One and Transaction Capital both rose 13.4%, Afrimat rose 19.8% and Aspen 20.8%.

Units in linked insurance policies should be considered as medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go up as well as down and past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Unit prices are calculated on a net asset basis, which is the total value of all the assets in the portfolio including any income accruals and less any permissible deductions (Brokerage, Securities Transfer Tax, VAT, Auditor's fees, Bank Charges, Custodian fees and the annual Management fee) from the portfolio divided by the number of units in issue. Fluctuations or movements in exchange rates may cause the value of any underlying international investments to go up and down. Forward pricing is used. Maestro Investment Management (Pty) Limited and 27Four Life Limited are members of the Association for Savings and Investments of South Africa (ASISA).
