Market Overview

Like many other months in 2020, December saw global markets rise further, with many ending the year at record peaks. One of the most influential variables during the month was the dollar, which continued to decline against other currencies; the (DXY) dollar index lost 2.1% during December, bringing its annual decline to 6.7%. The weak dollar set the stage for a rally in emerging markets (the MSCI Emerging market index rose 7.2%), commodity prices (the Bloomberg Commodity index rose 5.0%), and of course emerging currencies. The euro rose 2.4% against the dollar, and the rand 3.9%. Even sterling rallied 2.4% against the dollar.

Leading the equity market gains in December were Turkey, up 15.1%, Greece (9.8%), Brazil (9.3%), Russia (8.2%), and India (7.5%). The US, Swiss and German markets rose 3.9%, 2.2%, and 3.2% respectively. The S&P Mid and Small cap indices rose 6.4% and 8.2% respectively. The US large cap (S&P500) index rose 18.5% during 2020, and was powered throughout most of the year by strongly growing (growth) and large tech companies. This much is clear when you consider that the NASDAQ index, which is dominated by tech companies, rose 5.7% in December and by an astonishing 43.6% for the year as a whole.

The iron ore price rose 20.3% in December, the palladium price 22.9%, the gold price rose 24.6%, copper 25.7%, and silver 46.8%. The oil price, for the record, declined 26.7%. Despite rising levels of debt around the world, bonds enjoyed a reasonable month in December. The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond index rose 1.3%, to bring its 2020 return to 9.2.

Units in linked insurance policies should be considered as medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go up as well as down and past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Unit prices are calculated on a net asset basis, which is the total value of all the assets in the portfolio including any income accruals and less any permissible deductions (Brokerage, Securities Transfer Tax, VAT, Auditor's fees, Bank Charges, Custodian fees and the annual Management fee) from the portfolio divided by the number of units in issue. Fluctuations or movements in exchange rates may cause the value of any underlying international investments to go up and down. Forward pricing is used.
